

Rebecca Walsh

Army Veteran. Breast Cancer Survivor. Adventurer.

SIGNATURE TALKS

Murder Boob / Rebecca's most-requested talk. It's about lumps, biopsies, and my "murder boob."

Learning to Land / An accidental lesson from the US Army Airborne School.

Adventure After Adversity / What happens when you choose adventure after everything falls apart?

Talks can be customized for your event.

IDEAL FOR

- Women's leadership conferences.
- Outdoor/adventure events.
- Health and resilience summits.
- Nonprofits, schools, and organizations seeking inspiration, courage, and a sense of community.

AUDIENCES WALK AWAY WITH

- Real-world tools to overcome self-doubt
- Permission to chase big, scary goals
- Laughter, honest stories, and a renewed sense of courage—no matter the mountain ahead

PREVIOUS TALKS

- Outdoor Media Summit (2018)
- Casting For Recovery Volunteer Summit (2023)
- Leadership Laramie (2023)
- Bras For A Cause (2023 & 2025)

Rebecca Walsh is the founder and chief trailblazer at Hike Like A Woman, where she empowers women to swap self-doubt for muddy boots and unforgettable adventures.

A former Army officer and breast cancer survivor, Rebecca believes courage is contagious and that the best views come after the hardest climbs (especially if there's a dance party at the summit).

She's led hundreds of women on bucket-list hikes around the world, including summiting Mount Kilimanjaro twice (after cancer) but her favorite adventures are the ones she shares with her husband, two kids, and their spoiled puppy.

Rebecca's been featured in Sports Illustrated, the Trek, and Visit Wyoming, but she's happiest swapping stories and telling dirty jokes on the trail.

Expect honesty, humor, and a good time when Rebecca is presenting on your stage.

Speaking fees vary depending on event type and location. Please reach out for a custom quote or to discuss your organization's needs.

LET'S CHAT

rebecca@hikelikeawoman.com

or book a call here:

<https://calendar.app.google/Zor9itAUqkSXZaa7>